How to Store and Wash Masks

Store your cloth mask properly and wash it regularly to keep it clean. Consider having more than one mask on hand so that you can easily replace a dirty mask with a clean one. Make sure to remove your mask correctly and wash your hands after touching a used mask.

Wash your mask Wash your cloth mask whenever it gets dirty or at least daily. If you have a disposable face mask, throw it away after wearing it once.

How often should I wash my reusable fabric mask?

Ideally, after each time you wear it. “It is possible to get a mask contaminated after daily wear,” says Prof Raina MacIntyre, an infectious disease researcher at the University of New South Wales in Sydney. “We tested this and found viruses on the inside and outside of masks, both surgical and cloth.” Frequent washing is particularly important if you’re coming into contact with vulnerable individuals, says Prof William Ristenpart, a chemical engineer at the University of California, Davis. He recently discovered that the influenza virus could travel on contaminated dust particles, released by rubbing a contaminated tissue, say. In a separate study, he showed that dust was ejected from fabric masks during normal wear: “You can imagine if someone is infected and they are wearing a cotton fabric mask that is heavily contaminated, it’s possible that those particles could carry the virus,” he says. “Of course, you can’t wash it every 20 minutes, but every five or six days is way too long.”
